Trash & Recycling Reminders
Alternative Recycling, the company that does the curbside collection of our trash and recyclables, reminds everyone to please have your items to the curb by 7:00 AM. Items that are not put out in time may not be collected until the following week.

During holiday weeks, curbside collection will often be postponed to Saturday. The Town announces the schedule change using a General Notification through the CodeRED notification system. CodeRED alerts can be delivered to your home phone, cell phone, email address, or text message. There is no fee for signing up or for receiving alerts. To register, visit the Town’s website (www.gillmass.org), and click on the link for CodeRED. If you don’t have access to the internet, or need assistance with signing up, call Ray at the Town Hall, 413-863-9347.

Board of Assessors
The Assessors of Gill would like to welcome Tim Storrow to the Board. Tim was elected by write-in votes at the May 21, 2018 Annual Town Election. He brings his experience as ZBA and Planning Board member of Gill to our group. It is exciting to have him with us and to have a full membership of the Board. He is currently beginning his period of training and certification by taking a 101 class prepared by the MAAO.

June was a busy month in the Assessors’ office, as there are a number of reports that come due. These reports are Exemption and Reimbursement Report, Revised and Omitted Assessment Report and the Department of Revenue Directory update report. A mailing to those people in Gill who have received exemptions in the past is also prepared for July. If you think that you might be eligible to receive an exemption, please call the office and we will explore the possibility with you to enable you to complete an application. The Gill exemptions available, as voted by the Town, go to Veterans, Surviving Spouse, and Seniors over age 70.

Also during July our consultants will be visiting various businesses in Gill to update the data related to Personal Property for FY2019. This also includes accounts for second homes and animals.

In July we will begin our work on the Preliminary Real Estate and Personal Property extracts for tax bills. It is very important that you contact the office if there has been a change in your address or if you recall that there was an error on the address of the last tax bill that you received. We strive to keep the most up-to-date information in our records.

In August, the Boat excise bills will be mailed to boat owners who have boats moored or docked in Gill. Each year an inventory of these vessels is provided to the Town by the Massachusetts Environmental Police Registration Bureau.

If you have any questions concerning any of the above, please call the Assessors’ office at 863-0138.

Assessors’ Clerk office hours are Monday through Thursday 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Board of Assessors meetings are alternate Wednesday evenings at 5:30 p.m.

Gill Cares!

On Saturday, June 23rd the Slate Library hosted a program entitled Gill Conversations: Neighbors Helping Neighbors. It was an opportunity for Gill residents to come together and talk about what needs our neighbors have now, to learn how we have helped one another in the past, and to share ideas for the future. The program, moderated by Megan Bathory-Peeler, Chair of the Library Board of Trustees, was attended by a dozen community members. Roberta Potter, Director of the Council on Aging in Gill-Montague and head of our Senior Center located in Turners Falls, spoke extensively and answered questions about services presently offered to seniors in Gill. Megan started the program by talking about what community means, having awareness of who is around us and what each other’s needs are, and the fact that many universal needs that are not just about aging get hidden. With the sense that our community has been spreading apart, the challenges that we face now are to determine what the needs are in Gill; what specific skills individuals have that could be shared with neighbors; how best to educate and communicate within our town community; and the best ways to connect people with available resources. The hope is that this initial conversation plants a seed and is a useful start to the reclaiming of community support and engagement in Gill. We talked about a few model programs currently in place (particularly two models being explored or used in Northfield and Plainfield, MA) and will be asking representatives from these groups to talk with us and share their strategies so that we can formulate a community-caring program specific to Gill. Our program will be called Gill Cares. Future meetings of the steering committee will be posted on the town website events and Facebook page. If you are interested in joining this conversation now and/or would like to take a leadership role in this effort, please contact one of the Slate Library Trustees: Megan Bathory-Peeler 413-498-0103, Kim Sprankle 413-863-2975 or Barb Watson 413-863-9749.

The Trustees are pleased to support and host Gill Cares events but are not able to take on leadership roles at this time. Gill needs your care. Please get involved today!

Slate Library

Slate Library would like to shine a spotlight on items that are part of our collection. Magazines are available to the public to peruse at the library or to be checked out and taken home. We have a large, varied collection and are always open to suggestions from the community regarding what type of periodicals you would like us to carry. Some titles include _Time, People, Vanity Fair,_ and _National Geographic_ as well as titles geared toward specific interests like _Cooks Magazine, Bon Appetite, Martha Stewart Living,_ and _Organic Gardening._ We also carry _Discover, Consumer Reports, Yankee Magazine, Massachusetts Wildlife,_ and _Interweave Knits._ For our younger patrons we carry _Ranger Rick and Sports Illustrated Kids._ Please visit the library and bring your suggestions for new additions to our collection. We aim to please!

Update on All Town Read

Each of the books picked by the 225 Committee tells a good story; Someday is historical fiction that takes place in Enfield, one of the towns drowned by the Quabbin Reservoir, and The Red Garden is a collection of stories that follow generations of characters in Blackwell, a fictitious western Massachusetts town. Sense of place is key to each story, to the extent that the town is almost a character itself.

As we celebrate our own small town, we can use these stories as a springboard for discussion of what it means to live here and to reflect on our shared history. Please join your neighbors at 2 pm on October 27th at the Slate Library. We will gather to enjoy our community and talk about ideas inspired by our reading.

Possible topics:

- How long have you lived in Gill? What brought you here?
- Has your family lived in Gill a long time?
- Are you aware of any friction or animosity of new vs. old in town?
- How does the history of Gill affect your life in Gill?
- Are you aware of any legends in Gill of characters or events, not specific to history?
- What do you know about famous landmarks?
- Do you think there are any magical spots?
- The Slate Library has ordered six copies of each book. Please contact Emily Samuels (413-863-9446) if you need any help in getting hold of a copy.

Music at Antenna Cloud Farm

Antenna Cloud Farm, a local music festival that presents a wide variety of music here in Gill, is in full swing, and we invite you to join us for one (or all!) of our remaining five concerts. All remaining concerts will take place in our indoor, air-conditioned, 80-person capacity music venue.

Come enjoy world-class music and local community, all while eating a freshly-baked chocolate chip cookie and enjoying the early evening sky.

Jurassic Road Show – A 225th Anniversary Event

Please come to the Jurassic Road Show on October 13, 2018, from noon to 4 p.m. at the Riverside Municipal Building on Route 2 in Gill, for a 200-million-year leap back into the time when dinosaurs roamed this area.

New England may not come to mind when you think of dinosaurs, yet some of the first dinosaur remains, mostly in the form of footprints, were found locally in the 19th century. Many of these early footprints were quarried along the Connecticut River in Gill. The then-unidentified footprints were first discovered in 1835 by Dexter Marsh while laying slabs of rock in a sidewalk in Greenfield. These “bird tracks” were studied by Edward Hitchcock from Amherst College and sold to academic institutions not only in the United States but also in Europe. Marsh began quarrying the fossil slabs along the Connecticut River in Gill on land owned by Roswell Field. After Marsh’s death in 1853, Field began to excavate in earnest the numerous specimens on his land near Barton Cove and corresponded with other scientist collectors, many of whom were from major universities. He, like Marsh, was given honorary membership to scientific institutions, and, in 1859, gave a talk at a meeting of the Association for the Advancement of American Science in Springfield.

Field, who died in 1882, bequeathed his personal fossil collection to the Mount Hermon School for Boys, which had been founded by fellow Northfield friend Dwight L. Moody the year before. Field’s surviving letters are in Gill’s historical collection, and transcriptions by scholar Robert Herbert are available online at ida.mtholyoke.edu.

Another Gill resident, Timothy M. Stoughton, also excavated hundreds of specimens, most from his Lily Pond quarry at Barton Cove, and sold them to collectors and scientific institutions including the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, DC, and Columbia College in New York City. He was responsible for hosting renowned scholars like Harvard’s Louis Agassiz and the British biologist Thomas H. Huxley in his Riverside home.

Many of the footprints excavated from Gill’s Riverside quarries can still be seen locally at Amherst College’s Beneski Museum. The Gill Historical Commission will exhibit its footprints when the collection is next open to the public.

Members of the Jurassic Road Show team will show and discuss numerous specimens and artifacts from their various collections. Visitors to the October 13 event are welcome to bring any fossils or yet-to-be-identified artifacts. The Jurassic Road Show team members will happily attempt to identify or classify those objects and relics.
New Acquisitions in the Gill Historical Collection

The GHC is pleased to accept several new items. Leonard Eastman, descendent of George Barney Hale, has contributed several more items from G. B. Hale’s Civil War service, including several pictures of Hale, his cap with inner foraging pocket and a framed certificate of his participation in the Massachusetts 52nd Regiment. These gifts will be added to Hale’s CW backpack and other memorabilia in the collection.

Bob Perry has contributed an Otter River – C cast iron stove, which will be displayed with cast iron cookware in the collection. Mrs. William Boyle has added some samples of Robert Darr Wert’s textiles and a collection of Wert tiles. Lynn Stowe Tomb has added several maps to the town’s collection, including one of the 1676 encampment at the river. These additions are timely as we work to refurbish our displays at Riverside.
Gill Center’s Nomination to the National Register

After a three-year process of research, revisions, and review, the Massachusetts Historical Commission has scheduled a vote on the nomination to the National Register for their September meeting. Property owners in the proposed district will receive mailings about the historic district program and an open meeting in late August in Gill where for further information and questions. The GHC hopes that the historic significance of the town’s center will be recognized and that the center will join Riverside with distinction on the national listing of historic places. A reminder: the photographic exhibit of Gill Center will remain on the 2nd floor of the Town Hall through the end of September 2018.

Changes in GHC Membership

The members of the GHC are grateful for the service of Ivan Ussach who is moving to Warwick and therefore will leave the Commission. He has served with dedication and insight, both as a member and as chair. Ivan will be missed. Lynda Hodson Mayo has also resigned as a GHC member although her persistence in the preservation and understanding of Gill history will continue under the aegis of Town Clerk. We thank her for all she has done and will do. If you are interested in working as a member of the GHC, please contact a current member.
